

WHERE BRITISH ARE SMASHING GERMAN LINE

This map shows the Somme river and the town of Albert where the British troops have started to rout the Germans. The heavy black line is relatively correct as to the present position of the Allied line. The Canadians are not in the big fight as they are holding the salient at Ypres, 50 or 60 miles farther north. The British and French lines join at the Somme. The X shows the scene of the fighting at the Somme.
